INDIA IS A DEAD ECONOMY: DONALD TRUMP

By Editor – Gaurav Singh

United States President Donald Trump announced 25% tariffs on India, as well as an unspecified “penalty” for buying military equipment and energy from Russia.

A day later, Trump posted on social media that he did not care if India and Russia “take their dead economies down together”.

Asked about Trump’s description of India as a “dead” economy, Leader of Opposition in Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi said: “Yes, he (Trump) is right... Everybody knows this except the Prime Minister and the Finance Minister. I am glad President Trump has stated a fact... The whole world knows that India is a dead economy and that the BJP has killed it...”

Union Minister of Commerce & Industry Piyush Goyal pushed back, saying that India had rapidly transformed from being one of the ‘fragile five’ to the fastest growing major economy in the world in just over a decade.

“We have risen from the 11th largest economy to one of the top five... It is also widely expected that we will become the third largest economy in a few years. Today, international institutions and economists see India as the bright spot in the global economy. India is contributing to almost 16% of the global growth,” Goyal said in a statement to Parliament.

“In the last decade, the government has taken transformative measures to promote India as the manufacturing hub of the world... India’s young, skilled and talented workforce is driving innovation and competitiveness of Indian industry. Our exports have steadily increased during the last 11 years,” he said.

Economic growth

So, is India’s economy “dead”? While Trump, who seems annoyed with India’s hard bargaining in the talks for a trade deal, need not be taken literally, it stands to reason that one absolutely necessary attribute of a dead economy must be an absence of economic growth.

The Table alongside contains data for gross domestic product (GDP) from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) for a selection of countries over the past 30 years from 1995.

They have been selected in the context of Trump’s comments, and the recent trade pacts signed between his administration and countries such as Pakistan, the UK, and the EU (of which Germany is the biggest economy). Japan has been included because it is one of the world's biggest economies.

The data throw up a picture that is obviously contrary to Trump's contention that India, or even Russia, are "dead" economies.

Column 3 shows the number of times the GDP of each country has grown over the past 30 years. The top three countries are China, India, and Russia in that order.

While the US has now become four times its 1995 size, its closest trade partners like the United Kingdom have grown by less than 3 times, and Germany has failed to even double its economy.

Japan's GDP in 2025 is lower than what it was in 1995, which would, by this metric, qualify it to be not just a "dead" but perhaps a decaying economy.

In contrast, India's economy is today almost 12 times its size in 1995.

Comparison with US

There is another way to look at these numbers: how did these economies grow relative to the US?

Columns 4 and 5 show there are only three economies that have grown in size relative to the US: China, India, and Russia. India was less than 5% the size of the US economy in 1995, but in 2025 it is almost 14%.

By contrast, all of America's friends and trading partners have shrunk in size relative to the US.

Concerns for India

Do the above numbers mean India's economy has no problems? While India is by no means a "dead" economy — far from it — it does have several ailments.

While India's overall GDP has grown, its growth rate has lost a step since 2011-12, and failed to replicate the spurt of fast growth — averaging 8%-9% — that was witnessed before the Global Financial Crisis of 2008-09. Since 2014, India's growth rate has hovered around 6%.

India also has not achieved the pace of growth that China did during its own journey. In 2014, India's GDP was $2.1 trillion; 11 years later, at the end of the ongoing financial year, it is projected to reach $4.1 trillion, according to the IMF. By comparison, China's GDP raced from $1.9 trillion to $4.6 trillion in just four years, from 2004 to 2008. In terms of trade — which is the context of Trump's comments — India's share is just 1.8% of total global exports of goods, and just 4.5% of total global exports of services.

One sign of weakness in the economy is the fact that there are many sectors that India wants to protect when it comes to international trade. India's farm economy is plagued with distress, with the bulk of the farmers living at subsistence levels.

The reason why the bulk of India's population is still engaged in the rural and farm sectors is the failure to boost manufacturing. Official data show that since 2019-20, manufacturing has registered a slower growth rate (CAGR of 4.04%) than even agriculture and allied activities (4.72%).

Further, despite overall GDP growth, the quality of growth and its distribution is acutely skewed, leading to widening inequalities and persistently high poverty. Twenty-four per cent of the population is below the World Bank poverty line for India. In 2011-12, when India was a poorer country and its poverty line was the same as the abject poverty line, 27% of India qualified as poor.

Data on inequality also show an alarming rise. And on human development metrics such as health and education, the situation is concerning.

A stark skills mismatch means that unemployment in India rises to very high levels with rising educational attainment. And female participation in the economy is among the lowest in the world — even when it is rising, the quality of work is of the poorest quality with low and stagnant wages.

I don't care what India does with Russia," Trump said in his social media post. "They can take their dead economies down together, for all I care. We have done very little business with India, their tariffs are too high, among the highest in the world. Trump's latest barrage took place hours after he announced a shock 25% tariff against India, plus a "penalty" for trading with Russia.

The first part of the accord is to be concluded by October. The BTA is aimed at more than doubling bilateral trade in goods and services to $500 billion by 2030, from the current $191 billion. The US President has been consistently attacking India on tariffs but this is the first time that his messaging has taken such a turn. That comes on top of his insistence that he brokered the ceasefire between India and Pakistan. India has denied any third-party involvement in that matter.

Still, Trump's tirade is being seen as a pressure tactic to get India to offer more concessions on market access and announce investments in the US. In a separate announcement of a trade deal with Pakistan, Trump also wondered in a social media post if the neighbouring nation could sell oil to India some day. He also referred to Pakistan's "massive oil reserves," although that country has not announced such big hydrocarbon discoveries. The US President also said on Wednesday that the US is in talks with India for a trade deal.

Trump said India is willing to cut tariffs "very substantially." At that time, he had said, "We are talking to India now. We will see what happens. It doesn't matter too much whether we have a deal or we charge them a certain tariff. But you will know at the end of this week." It's not known what provoked the renewed assault on India, although Trump has been losing patience with Russian President Vladimir Putin's apparent unwillingness to reach a peace deal in the war with Ukraine.

At a press conference, Trump again brought up BRICS and his belief that the grouping — which includes India, China and Russia — wants to sideline the dollar, although there isn't much actual evidence of this. He described it as an "attack on the dollar and we are not going to let anybody attack the dollar. So it's partially BRICS and it's partially trade... We had a tremendous deficit." BRICS also includes Brazil, South Africa, Egypt, Ethiopia, Iran, the United Arab Emirates and Indonesia. The president had termed India's trade policies as "most strenuous and obnoxious" in his Wednesday post.

India's Response

In a suo motu statement in both houses of Parliament, commerce minister Piyush Goyal said the government is examining the implications of the latest tariffs and is in consultation with all stakeholders, including farmers, exporters, MSMEs (micro, small and medium industries) and industry groupings. "The implications of the recent development are being examined. The ministry of commerce and industry is engaged with all stakeholders, including exporters and industry, for taking feedback of their assessment of the situation," he said. Goyal's assurance assumes significance as Trump's punitive duty could significantly dent India's goods exports of $85 billion to the US.

"We will take all necessary steps to secure and advance our national interest," Goyal said. This was similar to a government statement that was issued after the Wednesday tariff announcement.

An official ruled out any immediate retaliation against the US' unilateral measure. "Since the situation is dynamic, we don't want to jump the gun," the person said.

Trump had issued an executive order on reciprocal tariffs, imposing additional duties in the 10-50% range on a host of countries. The additional duty on India was announced at 26%, including a baseline tariff of 10%.

BIHAR IS PIONEER IN MAKHANA PRODUCTION: SHIVRAJ SINGH CHOUHAN

On the auspicious occasion of release of 20th instalment of Pradhan Mantri Kisan Samman Nidhi (PM-KISAN) Yojana, Union Agriculture & Farmers Welfare Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan addressed a mammoth gathering of farmers, officials and dignitaries in Patna, Bihar. Bihar Deputy Chief Minister Shri Vijay Sinha, Cooperative Minister Shri Prem Kumar and other distinguished officials were present at the event, organised in the holy month of Sawan.

In his address, Shri Chouhan felicitated farmers, especially the females present in large numbers, and appreciated their hard work and contributions. He said that agriculture is the backbone of Indian economy and farmers are its soul. Serving these farmers is our ultimate responsibility. Referring to the rich cultural and agricultural heritage of Bihar, Shri Chouhan spoke of the glory of this land, sanctified by the penance of Lord Buddha and the blessings of Maa Ganga. He praised the hardworking people of Bihar, whose contribution is appreciated globally. Appreciating Bihar's tradition of knowledge and industriousness, he said, "The legacy of knowledge and industriousness of this state is incomparable. The land witnessed Mahatma Gandhi's Champaran Satyagraha, which gave a new direction to India's freedom struggle." The Union Minister reiterated Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's resolve to make farming profitable. Over Rs. 3,77,000 crore has been transferred directly to the accounts of farmers under the PM-Kisan scheme so far. On this occasion, over Rs. 20,000 crore was deposited in the accounts of farmers, providing financial assistance to lakhs of farmer families across the country.

Shri Chouhan emphasized on efforts like Pradhan Mantri Dhan Dhanya Yojana to increase agricultural productivity per hectare, especially in low productivity areas. He highlighted the significant contribution of Makhana production in Bihar and the continuous efforts to connect agricultural science with the farms.

The Union Minister assured timely and adequate availability of fertilizers and pesticides. He also informed about the efforts under various schemes to provide compensation in case of crop failure. He said that now the crops are procured at Minimum Support Price (MSP), to which 50 per cent profit is added on the production cost. This reflects the farmer-centric approach of the government.

Shri Chouhan reiterated that under the leadership of Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi welfare of farmers is our top priority.

Highlighting the measures for farmers' welfare, under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Mr Chouhan said that with the help of DBT (Direct Benefit Transfer) the government is ensuring that the assistance reaches directly into the accounts of the farmers. He said, "Earlier, farmers used to get only few pennies of Rs. 1 sent by the government, but now they receive whole amount without any leakage."

The programme concluded with a resolve to empower farmers and strengthen India's agriculture sector.

THE PRINCIPLE OF 'EVERGREEN REVOLUTION'

To mark the birth centenary of Professor M. S. Swaminathan, a towering figure in agricultural science and a pioneer of food security, the M.S. Swaminathan Research Foundation (MSSRF) is organizing the M.S. Swaminathan Centenary International Conference from 7–9 August 2025 in New Delhi in collaboration with the Ministry of Agriculture and Farmers Welfare, Indian Council of Agricultural Research and National Academy of Agricultural Sciences. Themed “Evergreen Revolution – The Pathway to Bio happiness”, the conference will honour Prof. Swaminathan’s lifelong contributions to sustainable and equitable development.

Announcing the event at a press conference today, Dr. M.L. Jat, Secretary (DARE) & Director General (ICAR), highlighted Prof. Swaminathan’s pivotal role in transforming India from a food-deficient to a food-surplus nation. “Prof. Swaminathan was a brave son of India whose revolutionary leadership in agriculture reshaped the country’s green landscape,” he added. Dr. Jat also emphasized that the conference aims to carry forward Prof. Swaminathan’s legacy by framing the future roadmap for Indian agriculture, with a particular focus on enhancing women’s participation in the sector.

Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi will inaugurate the event and release a commemorative coin and stamp issued by the Government of India in honour of the legendary scientist.

Dr. Soumya Swaminathan, Chair, MSSRF, underscored the global significance of the conference and its role in shaping the future of sustainable agriculture worldwide. Dr. C. Viswanathan, Joint Director (Research), ICAR-IARI, reflected on Prof. Swaminathan’s transformative impact on Indian agriculture. Dr. Ashok Singh, Secretary, National Academy of Agricultural Sciences (NAAS), stated that food is God to the hungry, and Prof. Swaminathan has been that god for millions.

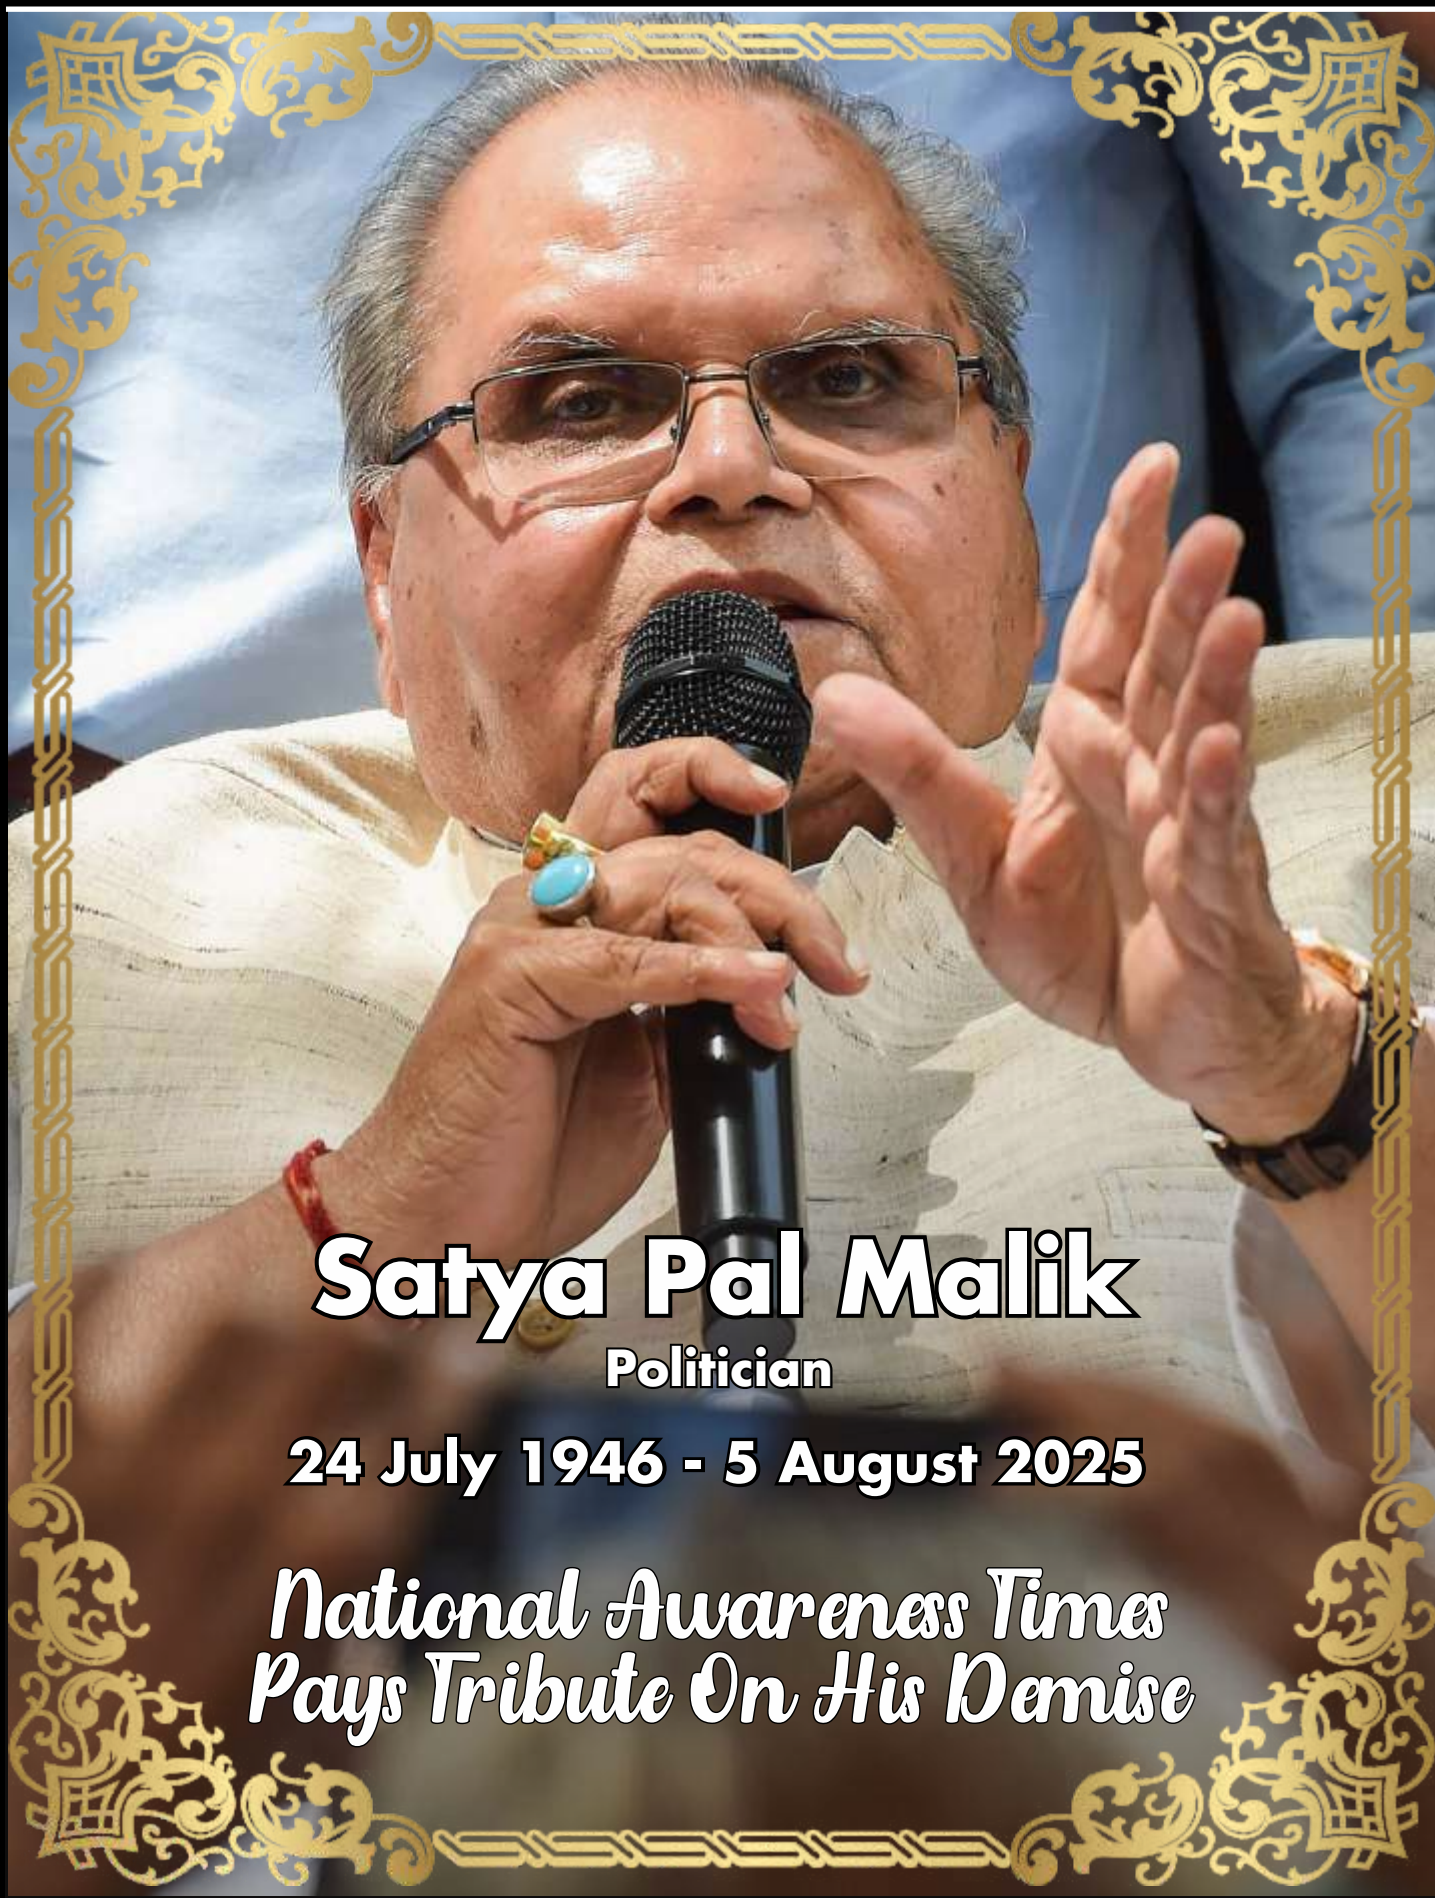

The conference will serve as a global platform for scientists, policymakers, development professionals, and stakeholders to deliberate on advancing the principles of the ‘Evergreen Revolution’.

Key themes include ‘Conservation and sustainable use of biodiversity and natural resources’; ‘Climate-resilient and nutrition-sensitive agriculture’; ‘Inclusive and technology-driven livelihood solutions’ and ‘Youth, women, and community engagement in development’. This international forum will bring together experts, policymakers, and stakeholders to advance the principles of the evergreen revolution.

The event is a celebration of Prof. Swaminathan’s visionary leadership and a reaffirmation of the collective commitment to building a sustainable, equitable, and hunger-free world—an era rooted in the concept of Bio happiness.

CENTRE WILL ENSURE ALL SUPPORT TO DEVELOP AGRICULTURE SECTOR IN MEGHALAYA

Union Minister for Agriculture & Farmers Welfare and Rural Development Shri Shivraj Singh Chouhan attended the 'Meghalaya Pineapple Festival-2025' in New Delhi. On this occasion, Chief Minister of Meghalaya Shri Conrad K. Sangma and senior officials of the Centre and the State were also present.

The event started with the exchange of various Memorandums of Understanding (MoUs) on pineapple. Thereafter, the Union Minister released a booklet on 'Meghalaya's progress in agriculture sector'.

Speaking on the occasion, Union Agriculture Minister Shri Shivraj Singh said that pineapples from Meghalaya are distinct in terms of taste and quality. He lauded the farmers and people of Meghalaya for their hard work and sincerity. Agricultural products including fruits, spices, turmeric, ginger, coffee, tea, jackfruit and mushroom of the state are of world class quality. Most of them are organic and need urgent promotion at global stage.

The Union Minister said that the Central Government will work in collaboration with the Chief Minister and senior officials of the state for exporting products from North East region outside the state and abroad. Private sector can also play a key role in this regard. It's really heartening to see that the state government is giving thrust into it via MoUs.

Shri Chauhan further said that our Prime Minister is committed to the development of the North-East region. The Central Government will provide full support to Meghalaya for development works including agriculture.

The Union Agriculture Minister informed that he will soon visit Meghalaya again with a team of scientists. He said that when he visited the state during the 'Viksit Krishi Sankalp Abhiyan', the farmers had highlighted several problems and challenges related to agriculture. Farmers had demanded appropriate solutions for increasing the 'shelf life' of agricultural products. In this regard, necessary instructions have been given to the scientists of the Indian Council of Agricultural Research. Concrete measures will soon be available and researches are on.

The Union Minister said that processing of agricultural products is necessary and serious attempts are being made for establishing relevant processing units. The state government has also moved a proposal of 'air lifting' of agricultural products and it has been taken sincerely. The option of transporting these products via train will also be worked upon. Efforts will also be made to increase the production of pineapple per hectare. A requisite roadmap for the development of agriculture in Meghalaya will be prepared in collaboration with the state government.

Concluding his address, the Union Agriculture Minister called upon youth to establish agriculture startups. He also appealed to the countrymen to make maximum use of Meghalaya's products. "Our products are the best in the world, we shouldn't hesitate in using them," he observed.

Shah Rukh Khan reacts to receiving first-ever National Award

In a moment fans across the globe have long awaited, Shah Rukh Khan has finally clinched his first National Film Award, marking a historic milestone in a legendary career that spans over three decades. The superstar was honoured for his performance in Atlee's 2023 blockbuster Jawan, which redefined his on-screen persona and heralded one of Bollywood's biggest comebacks. Taking to social media to express his gratitude, Khan shared a moving video thanking the jury, the Ministry of Information & Broadcasting, director Atlee, his family, and his fans. The video, laced with his trademark wit and charm, quickly went viral — particularly his iconic line, "Half a hug to everyone today... just keep the popcorn ready. I'll be back on screen soon — with one hand, ready," he said as he dropped a video showcasing his gratitude and the comment about a half hug? Well, that's the consequence of a latest injury the superstar suffered on the sets of his upcoming film. Further continuing his heartfelt speech, SRK shared, "To be honoured with the National Award is a moment I will cherish for a lifetime. This award is a reminder that acting is not just a job — it's a responsibility. A responsibility to show truth on screen." He acknowledged the creators who shaped his transformative year, adding, "Thank you Raju sir, thank you Saeed, and especially Atlee sir and his team for trusting me. Atlee sir, this is — like you say — mass." Khan also praised his team and family, calling them the pillars behind his success. "They bear with my eccentricities and impatience and make me look much better than I am — like even now in this video. My wife and kids love me like I'm the child in the house. They know cinema takes me away from them, but they bear it with a smile," he added. Asserting that the award is not just personal, SRK also addressed his fans directly and stated, "Thank you for all the cheers and the tears. Thank you for pausing your scrolling to watch me. This award is for you — as each one is." Khan's win marks a major turning point in Indian cinema. After facing a lull in the late 2010s, SRK's resurgence in 2023 with Pathaan, Jawan, and Dunki brought back the mass hysteria to box offices, reestablishing him as a cultural phenomenon. His role in Jawan — a blend of action, emotion, and political messaging — showcased a new depth to the King of Romance, proving once again that reinvention is his greatest strength. As fans across the globe celebrate the overdue honour, the actor's promise to return "soon on screen" ensures that the King's reign is far from over.

Vikrant Massey indeed is the best actor of this generation as he has been awarded the prestigious National Award for Best Actor for his powerful performance in 12th Fail, where he plays the real-life IPS officer Manoj Kumar Sharma. Directed by Vidhu Vinod Chopra, the film narrates the extraordinary journey of a young man from a humble background who dares to dream big. Battling poverty, self-doubt, and the pressure of India's most competitive examination — the UPSC — Manoj's story is one of perseverance and hope. With this win, Vikrant has firmly asserted his place as the best actor of this generation. Massey's portrayal of Manoj has been widely celebrated for its sincerity, subtlety, and emotional depth. His ability to embody the vulnerability and resilience of the character made the performance both relatable and inspiring. The film struck a chord with audiences across the country, and critics hailed Massey's work as one of the finest performances in recent years. This National Award win not only recognizes his hard work and dedication but also marks a significant milestone in his career. From television to cinema, Vikrant has steadily carved a niche for himself as an actor who brings authenticity and gravitas to every role. With each project, he continues to prove why he is among the best in the business. Sharing his reaction on winning the National Award, Vikrant said in a statement, "I want to thank the Honourable Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, the NFDC, and all the esteemed jury members of the 71st National Film Awards for considering my performance worthy of this recognition. I also want to thank Shri Vidhu Vinod Chopra ji for giving me this opportunity." He added, "Today, if I may say so, a 20-year-old boy's dream has come true. I am eternally grateful to the audiences for honouring my performances and for recommending this film with such love. It is a privilege to be sharing my first National Award with an icon like Shah Rukh Khan."
